HSBC makes new senior appointment in Ireland

Andrew Bowen joins as Head of Mid-Market Enterprises

(13 November 2017) HSBC Ireland has appointed Andrew Bowen as Head of Mid-Market Enterprises for their Corporate Banking operations in Ireland. The role will be based in Dublin.

Andrew will assume responsibility for HSBC's coverage of a number of Irish corporates with a turnover of between €50m and €500m operating across a variety of sectors, and will work to facilitate their access to global growth opportunities.

Andrew has joined HSBC from Barclays Bank Ireland plc where he worked as a Senior Relationship Director for nearly thirteen years. During this time, Andrew was responsible for managing a large portfolio of Irish manufacturing and technology companies across both the middle market enterprises and larger corporate space.

Speaking about the appointment, Michael Lalor, Head of Corporate Banking at HSBC Ireland said:

"We are delighted to welcome Andrew to the corporate banking team here at HSBC. Mid-Market enterprises play a significant role in the global economy. As Ireland's leading international bank, we are well placed to leverage our international networks and capabilities to the benefit of our Irish mid-market corporate clients, enabling them to access global growth opportunities. Andrew's addition to the team adds to our already compelling offering in this area."

HSBC initially established a corporate banking business in Ireland in 2006, as part of a Europe wide expansion of the HSBC Banking footprint.

HSBC also has a significant funds management and administration business in Dublin. HSBC Ireland employs in excess of 350 people, including a number of Global Function Heads at its headquarters at 1 Grand Canal Square.
